Special to the APPEAL

After the Fight.

New Orleans, Sept. 8.—After Jim Corbett was allowed to make a speech to the audience last night he was carried to his room where he found telegrams awaiting him from all parts of the country. Champagne corks then began to pop and all drank to the health of the luminary. Corbett himself declined to drink, saying he did not want to be like other pugilists, that milk was good enough for him. At one o'clock the new champion was allowed to retire and dream of his victory.

Parson Davies has announced that he will issue in a day or two a formal challenge to Corbett to fight Pete Jackson.

Sullivan was still sleeping at 10:30 o'clock this morning when an associated press correspondent was admitted to his apartment. His face was so swollen that the skin was drawn very tightly. His lips were discolored and distorted, giving his face a hideously fantastic appearance. His nose though not broken, was terribly bruised and cut from the bridge down at the center and on the left side. There was every evidence that a new god had appeared in the arena.

Corbett will join the traveling troupe with which he has been exhibiting himself here, and will at tonight's performance be handed the Olympic Club's check for $45,000.

A benefit to Sullivan has been projected, to take place in New York. Corbett has offered $1,000 for a box.

Joe Goddard had a special interest in the fight. "I want to fight Corbett myself," he said, "for $10,000 a side. I have my money here and am ready to put up. Yes, it was an interesting battle, but it turned out as I expected, because Sullivan is played out."

New York, Sept. 8.—Jim Corbett will appear at Madison Square Gardens on Saturday night. There will be an immense ovation and a terrible crowd.

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—Half a million dollars changed hands in this city on the fight. Irish and Jewish people all backed Sullivan heavily. Corbett's family in the aggregate win $25,000.

James's father has had very little sleep since his favorite son bested the bully of the earth, and is so happy and wild with satisfaction that he talks of nothing else.

Fatal Accident.

Sudbury, Tenn., September 8.—A fatal accident occurred at the Blizard mine yesterday afternoon. Five men were killed and two injured. The rescuers are now working to recover the bodies. The names of the killed are: George Johnson, McDonald, Pickard, McKinley and Funglin.

His Hundredth Trip.

New York, Sept. 8.—G. P. Neale, the Chief Superintendent of the London and Northwestern railway, completed in June last his 100th trip in charge of the train in which the Queen traveled to and from Baltimore. The Queen has just given him with a costly clock, appropriately inscribed.

No Tidings of Lieut. Peary.

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—The British bark Selina arrived from Greenland and reports no tidings of the seamer, Kite, sent to the relief of Lieut. Peary and party. Great anxiety is felt.

We'll Take It.

New York, Sept. 8.—The recent shipment of twenty millions of gold from San Francisco proved a disappointment. The gold is light in weight and in poor condition.

A Total Wreck.

Marshfield, Ogn., Sept. 8.—The whaleback steamer Chas. W. Wetmore is reported to be on North Spit bar a total wreck. The sea is washing over her. There were no lives lost and the cargo will be saved.

CORBETT'S OPPORTUNITY.

The correct thing for Jim Corbett to do now is to gracefully retire from the arena of fist science and never enter it again. He can well afford to refuse the championship belt and let the balance of ambitious fighters contest for it. By entering into some legitimate business channel and simply acknowledging that his only desire was to pull John L. Sullivan from his throne, he will more than have perpetuated his name as well as established his honor.

In the past a pugilist who had been successful in the ring crowded himself on to higher points and in quick succession won the belt from others. When the limit is reached he stands out in bold relief against a background strewn with vanquished foes, but at his feet yawns a life of dissipation and final defeat.

As he mounted so shall he fall, step by step and round by round to the end, scoffed at and jered by the same men who in days gone by extended him a hand of encouragement filled with gold.

The life full of victims and achievements will be but a speck in the pugilistic sky, and in a few short years will have completely disappeared.

Not one prize fighter in a hundred stops at the right time and still holds his laurels. Sooner or later he will meet a Waterloo, and with it comes such physical and mental torture that he drowns his sorrow in drink and wipes out the past in riotous living and debauchery until the hand of death taps his heart and puts him into a deep sleep from which there will be no awakening.

Mr. James Corbett of San Francisco has kicked the acknowledged champion of two continents, and emerges from the ring without a scratch. Fortune has been kind to him, and if he wishes to make use of the title, "James Corbett, gentleman," instead of "James Corbett, pugilist," now is his chance, and he must take it this time or lose it for ever.

Dangers of Cigarette Smoking.

Bob Horton, of Empire, a few days ago engaged to referee a dog fight. When the animals clinched Bob attempted to separate them and was severely bitten on the left hand. Everyone in town suggested some remedy, and as mashed potatoes saturated with turpentine, and applied to the wound as a bandage seemed to be in the lead he concluded to adopt it at once. The pain was considerably lessened and in a few moments he felt able to smoke a cigarette. He held it in the tips of his protruding fingers at the end of the bandage and when the match was applied the turpentine caught fire also. In an instant some very suggestive howling was going on. He put the hand under his vest and smothered the flame but not before several full grown blisters had made their appearance on various parts of the injured member. A very peculiar result has been brought about as Bob has sworn never to smoke another cigarette or interfere in a dog fight.

Read This, Ye Kickers.

For the benefit of the sick Carson sports who say Sully was not in condition we publish his dispatch to the Examiner:

"Your representative wishes me to telegraph you my feeling about the fight tomorrow. I feel well. I am in first-class condition. I will enter the ring weighing about 212 pounds, and am confident that I will win."

Blaine's Letter.

Augusta, Sept. 8.—James G. Blaine has written a long letter to Chairman Manley of the Republican State Committee, in which he defines the three great issues of the campaign as the tariff question, the reciprocity question and the national currency question.

To Beat the Record.

New York, Sept. 8.—Robert Bonner has concluded to speed Snod against the recent record of Nancy Hanks.

Professor Mulder, the teacher of German and French, has succeeded in securing a class in the Parisian tongue in the public schools. They will meet three times a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 3:30 to 4:30 p. m. in the recitation room. His charges are 15 cents a lesson per head for this class, and he has secured further students, and many more have signified their willingness to join. Such low rates place the language of polish within the grasp of everyone, and the boys and girls should recognize it.
